Base Ball Season Will Open Sunday

JOHNSONBURG MOOSE TEAM WILL MEET SMETHPORT IN THE OPENING STRUGGLE AT THE FAIR GROUNDS SUNDAY.

The Smethport base ball team will open the local season next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the Moose team of Johnsonburg will be their opponents. Most of the Smethport team have put in considerable practice and the local players should be in condition to give a good account of themselves.

Last season much base ball enthusiasm was in evidence toward the close of the season and this year it is hoped that the fans will turn out to the games from the start. It depends upon how the first few games are patronized just what plans will be made regarding the improvement of the team.

The diamond on the fair grounds has been placed in much improved condition which should help greatly to speed up the game. Some new faces will be seen among the line-up next Sunday as several new players are at hand to be tried out.

JOHN J. ROBERTS DIED MONDAY

John J. Roberts, one of the best known residents of Corydon died Monday, May 31, at 11 o'clock at his home. He had been in failing health for some time, nevertheless his death has cast a gloom over the community. Mr. Roberts was born at Westfield, Pa., April 16, 1841, came to Corydon fifty years ago where he had since continually resided. For many years he was engaged in the mercantile business and later dealt to a considerable extent in real estate and other property. He was prominent in social and political life, and from time to time held various public positions of importance, consequently his acquaintance throughout the county was extensive. Five children survive him, Grace of Hartford, Conn.; Ross of Buffalo, N. Y.; Reed of Vandergrift, Pa.; Harold of Olean, N. Y., and Mrs. Isabel Whiteside of Bartlesville, Okla. In his death the county has lost one of its foremost citizens. Funeral from the home Thursday, June 3, at 2 p.m.

HAPPILY MARRIED

Mr. Sven I. Winstadt and Miss Alma Ellen Strom, both of Smethport were happily united in marriage last Saturday morning at the parsonage of the Swedish Mission Church, Rev. Emil G. Winstadt officiating.

The happy couple have just recently arrived from Sweden and will make their home in Smethport where Mr. Winstadt is engaged as a painter for the Engstrom Brothers. They have the heartiest congratulations and well wishes of their many friends.

FUNERAL OF OLD RESIDENT

The funeral of Daniel Easterbrook, for many years a resident of Smethport, who died in Erie Monday of last week, was held in Bradford, and burial in Rose Hill cemetery Thursday. Daniel Easterbrook was at one time a member of McKean Post, 347, G. A. R., and four of his former comrades, H. M. Choate, A. W. Colegrove, Emil Thamm and John Cunningham, met at the grave and assisted in giving the old soldier a military burial. Mrs. William Burger, his daughter, well known to older residents as Birdie Easterbrook, who now lives in Bradford, was among the relatives present.

ESTIMABLE WOMAN PASSED AWAY

Brief mention was made last week of the death of Mrs. C. L. Irons of East Main street who passed away Tuesday, May 25, after an illness from an affliction of the heart which extended over a period of five years; during this time she bore her sufferings with cheerful fortitude and aside from various times when the illness confined her to her bed was around the home tending as best she could to household duties and bravely greeting her many friends. The Sunday preceding her death she took a walk with her husband and was apparently in no worse condition than for several months past but Sunday night she suffered a stroke and her death followed Tuesday. She was a woman well beloved by many friends, a loyal wife and loving mother whose death is sincerely regretted.

Miss Severina Johnson was born in Sweden, February 1, 1879, and came to this country when a young girl. Twenty-nine years ago she was married to Chas. L. Irons and her married life was passed in Smethport. She is survived by her husband and daughter, Miss Alice E. Irons of Smethport; two sisters, Mrs. N. J. Peterson of Wilcox and Mrs. J. A. Swanson of Smethport; one brother, Olaf Johnson of Sweden, who have the sympathy of the MINER in the loss they have sustained.

After a prayer at the house at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, the funeral was held at St. Luke's Church, the Rev. W. E. Van Dyke officiating. Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes formed a silent testimonial of the regard in which this good woman was held.

Among those from out of town in attendance at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Peterson and daughter, Ethel, of Wilcox, Raymond Peterson of Warren, Miss Helen Peterson of Ridgway, W. E. McCamman, Herman McCamman and Mrs. Ora Burdick of Olean, Miss Laura Fahlman of Kane, Fred Herman of Austin, Mrs. John Healy and daughter, Miss Anna Healy of Bradford.

She was a charter member of the local lodge Ladies of the Maccabees.

WILL TRY AND ENFORCE AUTOMOBILE LAWS

As will be noted in the Conopus Club minutes of the week that organization has gone on record in favor of enforcing the automobile laws in Smethport and it is understood that the first action will be to prevent the speeding evil which is the worst of the many infractions of motoring laws noted in Smethport and vicinity.

Offenders will undoubtedly be warned once. After that members of the club have volunteered their services to help local authorities to bring to justice motorists who persist in dangerous speeding which daily menaces the life and limbs of pedestrians, especially children.

The MINER is of the opinion that if this matter is carried through without fear or favor—especially favor—that the speeding evil can be abolished, and it is understood that this is the attitude the club takes. All speeders will look alike to them. Consequently it would seem rather the height of folly for an offender to persist in his mad motoring career after receiving warning.

MEMORIAL DAY MOST BEAUTIFULLY OBSERVED

With ideal weather conditions Memorial Day was impressively observed in Smethport. The Bucktail Post, American Legion had the program of the day in charge and every detail was looked after in a careful manner. The committees in charge of decorating the cemeteries at Keating, Colegrove and Farmers Valley attended to their duties in the forenoon and at 1:30 o'clock, the parade headed by the Smethport Band, and participated in by Bucktail Post, Boy Scouts, School Children and others followed by automobiles carrying the surviving members of McKean Post 347, G. A. R., Red Cross and Army Nurses, Spanish War Veterans and others.

Members of McKean Post, after music by the band invocation by Rev. W. E. Van Dyke, conducted the impressive ceremonies of the Post of Civil War veterans, while later on the program Bucktail Post held its first Decoration Day exercises over the grave of the late Keith Pratt, who met his death from pneumonia while serving in the Army. These exercises which concluded with the blowing of taps closed the program of the day's observance.

Mrs. Birger Peterson attended the bride and Mr. Birger Peterson, a brother to the bride, acted as best man.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Washington dispatches yesterday said. The Supreme Court in an unanimous opinion held that federal constitutional amendments cannot be submitted to popular vote for ratification by states having referendum provisions in their constitutions.

The method of ratifying amendments, the court held, is a national power specifically provided by the Federal Constitution and the states have no authority to provide otherwise. In so holding the court declared inoperative provisions of the Ohio State Constitution authorizing submission of federal amendments to a referendum for ratification and overturned state Supreme Court decrees dissolving injunction proceeding brought by George S. Hawke, Cincinnati attorney, in a tax payers' suit to enjoin submission of the prohibition and woman suffrage amendments to a referendum vote.

Next to the cases involving the validity of the prohibition amendment and enforcement law, the Ohio referendum cases are considered the most important before the Supreme Court. Had the court ruled otherwise the decision would have most likely resulted, according to court officials, in the reopening of the suffrage question in approximately a dozen states. One less than the constitutional three-fourths having already ratified the suffrage amendment, an opposite decision would unquestionably have banished all hopes of ratification prior to the November elections.

The decision, however, does not affect the pending prohibition cases as none involved that question except indirectly. In view of the fact that 45 of the 48 states has already ratified the liquor amendment, attorneys in recently arguing those cases before the Supreme Court conceded that even if the court held that the prohibition amendment could be submitted to the voters enough states without referendum provisions in the constitutions would remain to provide the required three-fourths.

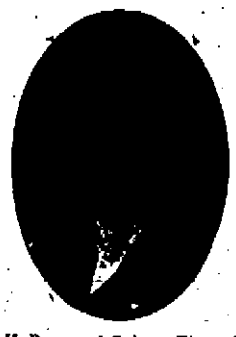
The court's opinion, however, puts an end to any controversy as to whether Ohio has ratified both amendments and puts Ohio decisively in the list of states approving each of the amendments.

Power to ratify a federal amendment, according to the court's opinion, which was rendered by Associate Justice Day, is derived from the Federal Constitution and a state has no authority to designate the means of ratification. The language of the Constitution, the opinion said, is plainly relative to the question and admits of no doubt in its interpretation.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS WON FIRST GAME

Monday a Boy Scout ball team and admirers to the number of twenty-three came to Smethport and played a game of base ball at the fair grounds after the exercises in the cemetery were concluded. The local team won the game by a score of 15 to 12. The Smethport Scouts are not only sturdy fire fighters but number some real ball players in their Troop and it is expected the Scout team will win many victories this season.

ATTENDING POMONA GRANGE



P. H. Dewey of Gaines, Tioga County, was in town yesterday on his way to Pomona Grange meeting at Crosby. He is Overseer of the State Grange. During a visit at this office he said that at the recent Republican primaries in Tioga County he was nominated as a canddate for Representative in the State legislature.

CHAMPION FEMALE CROSS COUNTRY MOTOR DRIVER

E. A. Studholme was awakened with startling suddenness one evening recently by a woman's scream. He dashed to the window in time to observe an automobile with a woman at the steering wheel perform stunts of a bizarre nature that while alarming, nevertheless caused him to gasp with admiration. Just as he reached the window the car climbed the curb on Main street and started across the lawn at the Young residence which is liberally besprinkled with large and sturdy trees. The lady who continued to erupt shrieks missed these trees by luck that was positively uncanny and proceed on her erratic way occasionally scraping the bark from one of the massive trunks but continually missing destruction by small fractions of an inch. Someway or other her clutch held until she bumped onto Water street and disappeared into the night. Mr. Studholme says he has no idea of the identity of the presumably fair motorist.

FARMERS VALLEY

The Ladies' Aid sold ice cream at the Grange Hall from 5 to 9 also after the Grange meeting. Over $26 were made. The following were on the committee to serve the ice cream: Mrs. Fred Bigl, Mrs. Martha Beck with Lois Stratton, and Jessie Pelton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Herzig returned Thursday from Oklahoma, where they have spent the winter.

Mr. James Bray attended the directors' meting at Smethport on Saturday.

About twenty members of the Sunday school enjoyed a party at the Grange Hall on Tuesday night. A good time was reported by all who were present.

Some of our Grangers are planning to attend the Pomona Grange at Crosby on Wednesday.

The Christian Endeavor and Sunday school rally will be held at Coryville, June 10 and 11.

CORINNE GRIFFITH

Corinne Griffith is known as the best dressed woman on the screen. Her gowns are designed especially for her productions and quite frequently this favorite of the silver screen sets the style for Dame Fashion. But dress is not the only asset Miss Griffith possesses; her facial expression is in a class by itself. There is not an emotion, shade or degree of feeling that she cannot express with her features. "The Climbers," "The Tower of Jewels," "Human Collateral" and "Deadline at Eleven" give an idea of her versatility. These features also show Miss Griffith in some of her latest gowns.

ELDRED

Mrs. Adoline Kaufman, aged 75, wife of C. H. Kaufman of Eldred, died at the Warren hospital at 4:12 o'clock, last Sunday afternoon, after an illness of several years, complicated at the last by erysipelas. Deceased was born in Wirt, N. Y., on April 30, 1845, and was married to Mr. Kaufman on July 20, 1875, their entire married life having been spent in their home on King street, which he built and prepared for her 45 years ago. Two sons were born to them, Charles of Olean, and Hiram of Detroit, who, with the husband, one brother, Austin Shaw of Eldred, and two sisters, Mrs. S. G. Lanphiere of West Eldred and Mrs. E. Wolcott of Warren, Pa., survive, have the sincere sympathy of their many friends. In departing this life, Mrs. Kaufman leaves behind a record of years of patient suffering, during which time she received the constant devotion of her husband and sons. Everything possible was done for her, but nothing seemed to afford relief till death called and she went to sleep, and was freed from her pain and suffering. The remains were brought to Eldred, and the funeral held from the home at 2 o'clock, Wednesday, Rev. Fairweather officiating and interment was made in Oak Hill.

The hardware store of B. H. Moody was sold this week to Wm. Lang, possession being taken Monday. The sale of this business was made necessary by Mr. Moody's illness, he having been laid up now for about three months, and prospects of his being able to assume his work in the store for some time, being uncertain. Mr. Lang, the new proprietor, has been superintendent of the Warren Gasoline company for several years, and will be able to take care of the business in good shape. A. P. Atwell of Kane, has succeeded Wm. Lang, as superintendent at the Warren Gasoline plant.

A law suit brought by Chas. Phalon vs. Mrs. John Brauecky, of Haymaker, was before Judge McCarthy last night. It seems that Mr. Phalon put on some posts on a line between the properties and Mrs. Brauecky pulled them out. Mr. Phalon had left the establishment of the line to referees of her own choosing she didn't want a fence, evidently. After a lecture by the court, defendant was released and it is expected that the rights of the plaintiff will be observed.

Edward C. Tanner of Eldred, and Miss Gertrude Fitzsimmons of Conneaut, Ohio, formerly of Eldred, were married at Conneaut, May 4. It is understood that they will reside in that city. Mr. Tanner has been very fortunate in the oil business, while the bride sian expert accountant, having been employed at the local refinery for several years.—Eagle.

PORT ALLEGANY

Mrs. Evard Card was very badly burned Saturday noon in a fire which destroyed the Card home on Brooklyn side. The home practically all of their household goods, and all their clothing except what they had on at the time, were also destroyed. About noon on Saturday Mrs. Card smelled smoke in the house, and went upstairs to investigate. She found the entire upstairs of the building filled with flames and dense smoke, with which she was very nearly overcome, falling down twice before she could reach a window. In order to escape she had to jump from a window on the second floor. Meanwhile she had been badly burned on the face, neck, chest, arms and hands. Her hands were so severely burned that she lost all the nails but one on one of her hand. Mrs. Luck Eastwood of Hamandsport, who was visiting there, was in the house at the time, and Mr. Card was working nearby. The flames spread so rapidly that there was time to save nothing except a few articles of furniture from the dining room. Mrs. Card was taken to the J. R. Baker residence, where she is receiving medical attention, but it will be some time before she recovers from her burns. Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Evard Card have planned a donation for them to be held on Saturday night at the home of Earl Baker, in order to help them in some small degree from their trouble and difficulties.

C. L. Thomas has been busy with a force of men this week bringing the huge boulder to the Public Square. This boulder has been secured through the efforts of the D. A. R. and will be dedicated in honor of the Port Allegany veterans of the world war. As soon as possible a bronze tablet with a suitable inscription will be secured and affixed to the boulder.—Reporter Argus.

The Conopus Club at its meeting Monday decided to make a determined effort to enforce the automobile laws in Smethport and vicinity, especially as regards speeding. This paper has repeatedly called attention to the fact that many cars are run through town at a rate far in excess of the speed limit. This practice is especially dangerous to children who are apt to become confused when crossing the street with one of these speeders bearing down on them at fifty miles an hour. Other sections of the automobile laws will be given attention, but for the present the club will devote its energies to breaking up the speeding habit and the Miner promises co-operation and extends wishes for success.

Fred D. Gallup, Esq., made one of the best Memorial Day speeches that it has ever been the writer's pleasure to listen to. It was not at all of the spread-eagle variety, but a comprehensive, common sense survey of what it means to be an American, that could scare help but revive the pride of race and love of country in the most unthinking of his hearers. His description of the Declaration of Independence as the greatest state document ever composed by mortal man with its concise statements as to the fundamentals of liberty was a masterly thought. His tributes to the soldiers of the three wars without bombast and therefore vastly more sincere and effective, while his reference to the noble women of the community, state and nation, was timely and most thoroughly appreciated. On behalf of many listeners who were impressed, instructed and entertained the MINER wishes to thank Mr. Gallup for his Decoration Day address.

Hereafter it will be "milk cow" and not "milch cow" so far as the U. S. Department of Agriculture is concerned. This decision marks the termination of a controversy in which etymologists in the department have had considerable interest. Those defending "milch" have pointed to scriptural use and certain classics as establishing precedents, while the opposition has contended that dairymen, ranchmen and farmers in general use "milk" instead of "milch" almost universally. The advocates of "milk" also favored that word because it is more strictly English while "milch" was akin to German. Since Americanization of language as well as ideals is an article in every patriot's creed, it is thought this last sally of the "milk" defenders helped as much as any to decide the question in their favor.

The white pine has been saved from the threatening pine-tree disease which originated in Siberia and was brought here from western Europe.

But all hope is abandoned of saving the American chestnut tree from the blight brought here from China.

Efforts to stop the spread of this bark disease have been given up. Scientists are warning owners to cut down even the chestnut trees which so far have escaped it.

Ten years ago the chestnuts exported in a single season from Virginia alone were worth $200,000. All chestnut products that year were valued at $20,000,000. The value of chestnut trees then standing in this country was estimated at $400,000,000.

Chestnut tree blight was not dangerous to the Oriental chestnut tree with which it was brought to this country. To the native species it was always fatal. No other plant disease has been so deadly. And all efforts to stop it spreading failed.

The money value is not the only loss. The chestnut tree has been a conspicuous and beautiful feature of the landscape in this country, and of special interest to every country boy at the time of the first frost each fall.

School boys of the future who read the poem of the village blacksmith will ask: "What is a chestnut tree?" and "What is a chestnut?" —Lancaster Examiner.

AUTOCRACY AND AFTER

The Republican Publicity Association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement from Washington headquarters:

"'I am the State,' was the form in which was expressed the essence of the doctrine of the divine right of kings, and 'after us the deluge,' was the utterance of Madame de Pompadour whose sinister control of kingly power brought the divine right to its end in the bloody French revolution. Since the darkest hour comes just before the dawn, and, as Emerson said, 'Bad kings help us if only they are bad enough,' perhaps Louis XIV and Madame de Pompadour conferred a blessing upon mankind, however much selfishness and ambition may have been the motive of their acts.

"Louis XIV is by no means a solitary figure in the history of despots. His egotism and ruthlessness in dealing with his subjects and with his associates have had their counterparts in every age if not in every generation. The description of the despot of France, written years ago, might stand as a picture of despots who lived generations before or generations later. Human nature has changed little in the gradual evolution of civilization.

"The maxim of Louis that 'self aggrandizement is at once the noblest and the most agreeable occupation of kings' has been the maxim of very autocrat, whether living under a monarchy or a form of government supposed to maintain the principles of democracy. In the view of such a ruler, he is at once the sole legislator, judge and executive.

"Prior to the time when Louis attained his majority, the heads of his various departments were wont to conduct the business that fell to their respective offices, but upon taking personal control of the reins of sovereignty he called his cabinet together and, so history tells us, informed them that 'in the future he should himself attend to affairs.' It is even recorded that 'He then charged the secretaries not to sign any paper, not even a passport, without his express commands. He gave personal attention to every matter, even the most trivial. He had able men about him, but they chafed under his minute directions and tireless superintendence.'

"Undoubtedly, if Louis had suffered a prolonged illness and any member of his cabinet had called a conference of cabinet members, prompt dismissal would have been the penalty, with the comment that 'nothing can be done without me.' The court of Louis was 'the most extravagantly magnificent that Europe had ever seen,' and if the monarch had ever occasion to cross the ocean to attend a peace conference, he undoubtedly would have taken with him a retinue of aids extensive enough to fill a steamship especially equipped for his personal pleasure and convenience. If he had participated in the framing of a treaty, he would have rejected the suggestions of any of his countrymen, and would have insisted upon the acceptance of the treaty without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't'.

"History often repeats itself. 'Louis discredited absolute monarchy by his shameful abuse of his unlimited power * * * His * * * extravagant expenditures weighed France down with chushing and intolerable burdens. During his reign the French nation made a swift descent toward the abyss of the revolution of 1789.'

"The reaction from autocracy is chaotic in its tendencies."

POILUS ASK AID IN DEFENSE

Warriors of France Fear Those Who Did Not See May Not Understand.

Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion, has received the following message from the French war veterans, an organization of ex-service men in France. The letter was transmitted through the New York office of the organization, and reads in part as follows:

"To Our American Brothers-In-Arms:
"COMRADES:

"The Poilus of France make this appeal through us to their American brother-in-arms and say to them in the name of that justice for which they fought together, never forget what you came to do amongst us. By the blood which was shed by us together, in the name of our dead who lie side by side, in the name of all the brave men who bear on their bodies the glorious marks of desperate battles, in the name of all the heroes whom our nations have produced, let us not forget, let us continue together their sacred work, let us unite our countries as our hearts were in the face of death, let us not lose the fruits of such generous efforts, of so many willing sacrifices, let us look clearly into the future and continue for the maintenance of our liberty and for the honor of our race the battle to which our duty calls us.

"America has gained through her sons in this war the right to immortality. Nations looked on with admiration at the spectacle of millions of young American heroes arriving on the soil of France, to defend the sacred principles of honor and liberty inscribed in the American Constitution.

"Victory has crowned their banners that and the blood shed for a just cause, that is a past which future generations will be proud to claim as a heritage. But the sons of America have not finished their work, our common enemy does not acknowledge his defeat, he hopes when he will have succeeded in sowing the seeds of discord amongst us to renew the fight which he lost, thanks to you. We know that calumny will have no effect on you who have seen with your own eyes what you saw, you who know us and know what we are, but we fear that those who have not seen like you may come to doubt us and that is why we send out this appeal to you, comrades, that you may take part in our defense.

"Our cause is yours also, you cannot go back on us, you saw us in action and you know that we do not need any other proofs than our past records to prove to all men of worth that if we fought this war with so much heroism it was because we were defending not only our soil, but the entire world.

"We held back and stemmed the formidable wave of German invasion, almost alone for four years, from the Somme river to Alsace, bearing the brunt of the hardest shocks, our brave men leaving their lifeless bodies by the hundreds of thousands on the fields of battle, without one word of complaint or without asking for quarter, because they knew that if France were vanquished, the principles of the great Revolution were doomed forever, the declaration of the rights of man and the citizen would have been destroyed and trampled on, the poor and humble would have been forced back under the iron rule of lords, might would have prevailed over right, crime and dishonor would have been written as the very heading of fundamental laws of modern nations.

"It must not come to pass that our brave men died in vain, we owe it and you owe it to their memory. The survivors must not sleep on their laurels in false security. You must not imagine that it was we alone whom you helped, you must understand that your liberty was threatened just as much as ours; all nations are more or less dependent on each other. As for us, Poilus, we shall never believe that it was from pity, nor even out of gratitude for help given by us to you in former times, that you came to our aid.

"France dead would have meant the condemnation of the whole world and France would have died rather than go back on her principles. Do not therefore let anyone say you have done enough for her; it was not she whom you helped, it was the ideals and principles for which she always stood and without these ideals of justice and liberty a free nation cannot exist.

"France is still bleeding and will suffer for a long time from the wounds which she received, her young sons cut off in their youth, her lands devastated, her commerce destroyed, her credit diminished. But what makes the greatness of a people is not alone its prosperity, it is keeping its honor unsullied. As long as this sentiment remains in a nation, that nation will live in spite of all oppression.

"Long live America, long live France, united by the blood of their sons.

"CH. BOURNEZ."
"General Secretary."

LEONARD WOOD'S STAND ON LABOR

Its Problems and Those of Capital Interdependent—Workingman Not a Commodity.

Leonard Wood thoroughly comprehends the interdependence of capital and labor. When they are at odds with each other disaster results; when they are united prosperity is the outcome. There is no man in America better fitted to express views of practical value on this subject than Wood, because as an administrator in various parts of this country and in Cuba and the Philippines he has been confronted by every phase of the labor problems. The tact and broad sympathies he has displayed when recently called upon to handle misunderstandings between capital and labor in the acutest forms in the steel districts at Gary and in the coal regions of West Virginia qualify him to act as leader in the growing movement looking toward a permanent adjustment of all disagreements between the capitalist and the workingman. Wood says:

"We must do all we can to encourage good business, whether it be big business or small business. If it is good business and beneficial to the public it is worthy of encouragement; if it is bad business we must control it and regulate it. Good business means prosperous labor, and this means increased production, and nothing must be allowed to interfere with ample production. It is the real remedy for the high cost of living. Limitation on production is an invitation to disaster—disaster which strikes first the poor, but eventually affects all. We cannot consider business and labor separately. They are interlocking and interdependent. We must spread the war burden over a much longer period of years than at present contemplated. The present excess income tax is paralyzing initiative. It is a strangle hold upon the throat of business which must be relaxed if American business is to have that initiative which will be necessary to give us our share in the world's trade. We must do everything we can to help on good business, for on it depends national prosperity.

"Labor and capital in this country must work together in order to meet the problems which are going to follow this world's war. We do not wish an autocracy of either capital or labor, but a real democracy in both, characterized by a spirit of co-operation and helpfulness. We must inject more of the human element into our relations with those about us, whether they be our associates or our subordinates—more gathering about the table and discussing matters fully and frankly.

Labor Not a Commodity.

"We must recognize that the workingman is neither a machine nor a commodity, but that he is a collaborator with capital. Individual capacity and ambition must receive encouragement and recognition. The employer must recognize the dignity and status of the worker and give him every consideration due. The closest possible contact and the fullest understanding should be maintained between employer and employee. Arrangements for the adjustment of grievances must be provided which will work smoothly and promptly. We must do all we can to improve the workers's living conditions, to make his surroundings decent and attractive to himself and family. His hours of work must be such as to give him an opportunity for reasonable recreation with his family during the hours of daylight. He should receive a wage that not only permits him to keep body and soul together, but enables him to lay by something for the future. If these conditions are to be obtained and maintained labor must recognize that high wages can only be maintained under conditions of high production and high efficiency. Capital must be paid in accordance with the risk of the enterprise. Those who direct and plan must be paid adequately, labor must be adequately paid, and after this, if anything remains, comes the question of an equitable distribution. Many of the more progressive, intelligent and farseeing men are already beginning to give labor a participation in this surplus—a share varying with its amount.

"The main thing is for labor and capital to pull together in the present [illegible] remembering that only [illegible] co-operation and frank and [illegible] understanding and mutual concessions can the wheels of industry be [illegible] going."

LEONARD WOOD LEADER FOR TWENTY YEARS PAST

Wood's candidacy is hailed by the wiseacres as a protest. It lacks, they aver, the force of a positive quality. They forget that he was doing big things in Cuba when the young voters of today were in their cradles; they forget, if they ever knew, that for twenty years many people who did not know and did not care whether he was a Republican or Democrat, have watched his career with growing interest, an interest heightened in more recent years by what appears to be a pretty well founded conclusion that he is strong in most of the qualities that are conspicuously wanting in the present administration.—Indianapolis (Ind.) News.

WOOD PACIFIED MORO PROVINCE

Stamped Out Piracy and Slavery in Philippines—Began Preparedness Program in 1910.

By JOHN G. HOLME,
Author of "The Life of Leonard Wood."

VII.

Being practical and farseeing in the matter of sanitation, Governor Leonard Wood applied his full knowledge of this branch of medical science to cleansing Cuba of disease by preventive methods. There were no trained nurses in Cuba outside of the Sisters of Charity. Wood founded a school for nurses, sent them to all parts of the island as his missionaries of public health, and in this way spread a propaganda of hygiene and sanitation among the natives. He had modern hospitals built in every town of size and repaired the old ones. Finally he drafted the Sanitation Code of Cuba, which is now embodied in the Constitution of the Republic.

For the monumental labors he achieved in building up a new republic on the ruins of Spain's old colony Leonard Wood received from his government the salary of a major-general, $7,500 a year. The embryo Cuban government showed its appreciation of his services by adding a like sum, making Wood's total income $15,000 a year for the two years and a half he spent as governor-general. This is by far the largest salary he ever received. During his Cuban administration he was offered a business position by an American firm at a salary of $40,000 a year, but he declined it. Wood is today a poor man.

Wood formally transferred the island to the new Cuban government on May 20, 1902, and immediately left for the United States. He spent several weeks in Washington writing his report of the American Military Occupation, and then went to Germany with other American army officers, representing the United States at the German military maneuvers. On this occasion he was afforded his first view of the powerful military machine which the Kaiser was building. He met at the maneuvers many German and British officers who were later to become famous in the world war.

When the Moros in the province of Mindanao, Philippine Islands, were giving William Howard Taft, Governor-General of the Islands, a great deal of trouble, General Wood volunteered to take a subordinate post under Taft to pacify the Mohammedan insurgents. Roosevelt had succeeded to the Presidency and was much pleased over Wood's offer. The latter took the eastern route to the Islands, stopping in Egypt, India, the Dutch East Indies and other Asiatic colonies to study the most enlightened colonial government methods. He arrived in Mindanao, the second largest island in the Philippine group, in the summer of 1903.

The Moros were pirates, slave traders, and all around "bad men." They had never been known to behave properly. Wood had to deal with a score of Filipino tribes in Mindanao and the Sulu Islands, speaking fourteen different dialects. These tribes were hostile to each other, and all were ready to combine against the United States.

Wood's Philippine career was but a repetition of his signal success in Cuba. He pacified the Moros, wiped out slavery and piracy, established civil government and built schools. It took him three years to accomplish this work, but when he left Mindanao this province was the best governed section of the Islands.

For two years Wood commanded the Philippine division. During this time he strengthened the fortifications of the island and in many ways improved the Philippine military system. On his return to the United States in 1908 he was placed in command of the Department of the East with headquarters on Governor's Island, New York harbor. In 1910 he represented the United States as Special Ambassador at the Centennial celebration of the Argentine Republic.

On his return to this country General Wood was appointed Chief of Staff of the United States army. He now began in earnest his great campaign for the military preparedness of this nation which he continued till the armistice was signed on November 11, 1918. He had become thoroughly convinced, like many other American army and naval officers, that a general European war was at hand and he was not afraid to speak out his message of warning. He gave the country the largest militia maneuvers, the so called "Battle of Boston," ever held in the United States, and in 1915 he established the college student training camps at Monterey, Cal., and Gettysburg, Pa. When the war broke out, these camps increased in number and attendance. In 1915 he establish ed the Plattsburgh training camp, which, together with other camps built on its model, had trained several thousand army officers by the time the United States declared war on Germany. It has often been pointed out that no more interesting example of the influence of a single personality upon world events is on record than that exerted by Leonard Wood before we entered the war. Wood and Roosevelt were the inspired leaders in the movement to uphold national honor against foreign aggression and to prepare for the struggle towards which we were inevitably drifting.

WOOD DISCUSSES FARM PROBLEMS

Demands Greater Educational, Social and Economic Advantages for Rural Sections.

Having lived as a boy in a rural community and having spent a large part of his life in environments deriving their welfare from agricultural activities, Leonard Wood possesses first-hand knowledge of the problems that confront the American farmer. On this topic, as on all others, his clear thinking leads to clarity of expression, and there is no reason why any farmer in the United States should not thoroughly understand Wood's position on the vital questions that are involved at this time in our agricultural enterprises. Of the farmer and his problems, Wood says:

"Agriculture is the principal source of our wealth. The farmers are the stable, conservative element. They stand for good government, for the rights of property and the rights of men. The Red Flag never flies over a farmhouse.

"The decrease in agricultural production compared with the increase in the population of the country and the number of people who live and work on the farms is disastrous and should not continue. In other words the food supply should never be allowed to fall below the country's requirements. We ought always to be self sustaining.

"During the war, under every sort of handicap, the farmers of America rendered magnificent service in producing the food necessary to feed not only the United States but very largely our Allies. They sent their sons to war in spite of the shortage of labor and by dint of increased effort they tremendously increased this country's output of food. Had they not done—so, it would have been impossible for us to have taken our part in the war as we did. The war would have dragged on and probably been lost. Now the farmers feel that their service was not adequately recognized.

"The farmers constitute a full third of our population, and the welfare of the nation is practically bound up with theirs. Yet the benefits of modern civilization have not been extended to our rural communities in any such measure as they have a right to demand.

Make Farm More Attractive.

"Education for farm children should be universally accessible. Rural schools should be up to the standards of city schools in every way. The little state of Denmark, we are told, has managed to build up a system of rural schools that leads the world. No doubt this explains the reason why Denmark leads the world in agricultural productivity per acre under cultivation. There is no reason why we, with our greater resources, cannot duplicate Denmark's feat, even outstrip it. Moreover, if we are to keep up our national progress, we must see to it that our farming population has comparatively equal educational, social, political and economic advantages with our urban population.

"Long hours of labor, lack of proper returns, and lack of social and intellectual attractions are largely responsible for the constant flow of young men and women from the farms to the towns and cities. We have done little or nothing to make farm surroundings more attractive or farm labor less of a drudgery. We have not developed our rural highways and modes of communication as they should be.

"Every sound and normal man and woman should have a fair and workable chance to earn a living and to receive the benefits of their toil, a fair and workable chance for a decent, useful and desirable life, with a chance to marry and support a family, and give the children a reasonable opportunity for a reasonable start.

"The farmers have a right to expect from every national administration a Department of Agriculture in full and intelligent co-operation with them and the great farm organizations of America. They deserve to be given the results of thorough and intelligent study as to the cost of farm products at home and abroad, and should be furnished the unexpurgated facts.

"We must keep constantly in mind one most important fact, which is that nothing must be permitted to interfere with ample production. There must be no fixing of prices which will result to the detriment of the farmer. Indeed, price fixing, especially minimum price fixing, should be entered into most cautiously and only when it is certain that good and not harm will result.

"I believe in a far larger measure of direct dealing between producers and consumers of food. Today altogether too small a portion of the consumer's dollar gets back to the farmer."

SOLDIERS FOR WOOD.

We went into the war grossly unprepared, but General Wood had been the foremost leader in the army for preparation. As chief of staff and as the leader of the movement for modernization of the army, as the creator of the training camp and its system of intensive training, his contribution to our military success was of the first rank. If the politicians try to create the impression that a soldier candidate is necessarily an undesirable candidate they will find the soldiers resenting the effort.—Chicago Tribune.

YOUR CHANCE TO BECOME BOND HOLDER OF HEALTH

A new feature of the Christmas Red Cross Seal Campaign this fall is the Health Bond. Health Bonds are used as substitutes for seals in cases where persons do not care to accept seals, at one cent each, for the amount of their subscription. The seals come in denominations of five, ten, twenty-five, fifty and one hundred dollars.

The Health Bonds can be bought by a person who wishes to devote any one of the sums mentioned to the fight on tuberculosis and the improving of the public health and does not want seals.

Liberty Bonds return interest in money, Health Bonds return interest in good health, for Health Bonds will help to improve the health of your community and your neighbors, and your health depends partly upon the health of your neighbors.

We can furnish you the kind of printed sales letters and circulars on HAMMERMILL BOND that will get your message in the right way to the man who can buy your goods.

Use more printed salesmanship. Ask us.

"But in the last analysis, the factor most influencial in determining any man's success must ever be the sum of that man's own qualities, of his knowledge, foresight, thrift and courage.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Cucumbers at any price and at any time disagree with some people, and at 75 cents each they give most all of us a pain.

SPROUL FULLY ENDORSES SEALS

Governor Says Christmas Sale Is Potent Force Back of State Health Program.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Governor William C. Sproul sees in the Christmas Red Cross Seal Sale one of the most potent agencies now being used to enlist the public back of the state's public health campaign.

"Only the co-operation of the public," says Governor Sproul, who is honorary chairman of the state seal committee, "will make it possible for the state adequately to deal with the various disease problems that face us.

"We cannot hope to prevent all disease. But we can properly hope to go far in the direction of preventing preventable disease. We can reduce the dangers of contagion. But in every health movement it is necessary that the public and the state work along the same lines.

"The Christmas Red Cross Seal has back of it the force of Christmas sentiment. But it also stands for practical endeavor. The funds raised by the seal sale are used to bring home to all of our people a realization of the fact that the white plague can be conquered and a knowledge of how to conquer it. The Christmas seal is intimately associated with the child victim of the white plague. If we can so order society that the children are safe from the white plague, we are on a fair way to solving our problem.

"The private agencies that are financed by means of the seal sale cooperate, I understand, with the state department of health, and particularly with the bureau of tuberculosis, and the local tuberculosis dispensaries.

"In short the seal sale helps make it possible to align the public back of the state's health program. And for that reason it has my cordial endorsement, as well as the approval of the state department of health."

TUBERCULOSIS CROSS A SYMBOL OF CHARITY AND HELP TO HUMANITY

The double red cross as a symbol or emblem of the organizations fighting the white plague has been in use for seventeen years. It was first adopted for this purpose by the International Anti-Tuberculosis Association in Berlin in October, 1902. It was proposed by Dr. G. Sersiron, of Paris. Dr. Sersiron took the shape of this cross from the reliquary Croix de Lorraine and the cross of the Greek Catholic church. Today this emblem is used by anti-tuberculosis workers all over the world.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in 1907 adopted the double barred cross for use in the United States. Neither the form nor the proportions were specified and the result was a variety of shapes and proportions. Because of this condition the National Association in 1909 appointed a special committee to consider the design and the dimensions of the double barred cross as the emblem for all anti-tuberculosis organizations in the United States. The committee reported in favor of a double cross with the upper cross, the shorter and the lower standard being longer and the lower standard extending the cross across the ends of both arms and standards being pointed instead of square.

This design was fixed upon for its possibilities.

Because the design selected is furthest removed from any design having a religious significance.

Because it is furthest removed from the well-known emblem used by the American Red Cross.

Because its wide spread use in this country by many anti-tuberculosis associations over a long period of years has associated it in the public mind with the tuberculosis movement.

The two crosses, the Croix de Lorraine and the cross of the Greek Catholic church united in forming the tuberculosis cross, are symbolic of charity and help to humanity.
